Dear [REDACTED]

I regret to say that I have been unable to locate a suitable opening in my shop at this time for an individual of your background at the salary level you indicated as the minimum acceptable, nor does it appear likely that any vacancies will occur in the foreseeable future. Further examination of our situation has disclosed that the area in which you would be best qualified for work in economic research is one in which we are particularly full at the indicated level, and several expected vacancies did not materialize.

I have taken the liberty of referring your qualifications to our central personnel office in order to ascertain whether or not any opportunities for an individual with your background exist in other parts of the Agency.

I enjoyed meeting you during my visit to Stanford. Please be assured that the interview we had was entirely satisfactory.

Sincerely yours,
